NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Carrying a borrowed trench helmet and a letter from President Roosevelt to Prime Minister Churchill, Wendell L. Willkie departed for bomb-swept England today aboard the Yankee Clipper at 8:30 a. m.

Mrs. Willkie hugged the big, shaggy-haired Republican presidential nominee of 1940 and kissed him on the right cheek just before he ducked inside the plane at La Guardia field and waved to him as the great ship soared aloft and was lost in the clouds over the Atlantic.

Someone recalled to her that he had had some newspapers and a book he had wanted to read and she cried in dismay.

"Oh, he forgot the book," Willkie, who endorsed the lend-lease bill for aid to Britain, was forthright in his statement directly (Continued On Page Two)

After virtually confirming the capture of Tobruk, vital Libyan port, by British "blitz" troops in north Africa, the prime minister told of Britain's four million "armed and uniformed" men who had been trained not only to defend these islands but to cross the waters and challenge Adolf Hitler on his own grounds.

All sorts of factories have been established, he said, to equip and supply this expeditionary force when the time comes for Britain to take the offensive in Nazi-occupied Europe.

Threatened Plane Plant Strike Averted

Reach Agreement At San Diego, Cal.

Terms Of Settlement In Dispute Are Not Disclosed To Public

PLANT BUILDING MILITARY PLANES

BULLETIN
(International News Service)
SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 22.—A threatened strike at the Ryan Aeronautical plant in San Diego was averted early today, according to an announcement by Harry C. Malcolm, federal labor department conciliator.

Malcolm's announcement came only a few hours before the strike, called up by the CIO United Auto Workers Union, was to have gone into effect.

Terms Not Disclosed
Terms of the settlement, reached at an all night parley between CIO and company negotiators, were not disclosed.

Last evening Richard T. Frankenstein, chief negotiator for the union, had announced that unless an agreement was reached at the session the strike would start at 7 a. m. today.

The plant is engaged in production of military training planes for the war department and employs approximately 1600 men.

The union had demanded a wage increase from 50 cents to 75 cents an hour as the minimum basic rate, but whether this increase was granted could not be immediately learned.

It was learned, however, that the wage issue had been settled and that a vacation clause in the contract had been holding up the negotiations.

WILLKIE STARTS CLIPPER PLANE HOP TO LONDON

before departure. Before about 300 persons who crowded the balcony at LaGuardia field, he said:

Must Support England
"I am going to England for a few weeks because I believe so strongly that the survival of England is the best assurance we have for keeping the United States out of the war. I think we should support the fighting men of England for they can stop the onslaught of Hitlerism. I feel we must keep Hitler away from these shores and I'm going over myself to see for myself what it's all about."

He ended with, "God Bless You All."

John Cowles, newspaper publisher, and Landon K. Thorne, banker, two of his friends, accompanied him on the voyage. He expects to return February 10.

The tin hat was the subject of a little joshing from reporters as he emerged from his Fifth Ave. home with Mrs. Willkie and two friends, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Atwood, at 7:25 a. m. He was swinging the helmet, a khaki-colored affair, by its chin strap.

"What's that for?" he was asked. "Oh, just in case."

"Is it a relic of your war days?" "No. I was told it would be quite difficult to get one in London so a friend sent it to me."

"Are you worried?" "Of course not."

He was dressed in a blue suit, blue shirt, dark blue tie, dark topcoat, gray hat, black shoes and socks and had a red muffler hanging about his neck. Mrs. Willkie said gently:

"Fix that muffler."

He did.

At LaGuardia Field
The party arrived by car at LaGuardia field before 8 a. m., where Willkie told of thousands of letters and telegrams received from Republicans praising his stand for the lend-lease bill. The ratio, he asserted, was to or 100-1 in favor of his action.

One telegram, from Mayor John W. Kapp of Springfield, Ill., came to him at the field. "Have you reserved your air raid shelter?" he was asked.

He grinned. "I've known bombing before."

In a serious vein, he asserted: "I am not going to England in an official capacity. I'm going as Wendell Willkie, private citizen, to see and hear. I have no plans to speak there formally. I'll undoubtedly talk to some of the British leaders."

He already has an invitation to see Prime Minister Churchill. He also wants to talk with Ernest Bevin, minister of labor.

"I told Secretary of State Hull I would have a talk with him when I return about what I had observed and learned. I have no plans for seeing the president. I will undoubtedly have things to say about what I learn in England, but there are no definite plans for speaking when I get back."

He asked what Mrs. Willkie thought of the trip. "She's a good sport," he said. "I wish I were going myself," she added. "I'd like to be going with him."

Captain Haakon G. Gulbransen was in command of the clipper, which carried 22 passengers. Nine of them, including the Willkies, were bound for Lisbon, where they will change to a British plane and arrive in London within 48 hours.

BRITISH BOMBERS BLAST AT ELBASAN

Military buildings and a railway line were hit, while violent explosions were observed near the latter.

"Anti-aircraft fire was encountered and enemy fighters were active, but all our aircraft returned safely."

New Successes
Earlier, as the Greek high command claimed new successes on the Albanian front, Fascist air raids on the Greek port of Salonika and the towns of Volo and Preveza were announced.

A heavy new Italian attack on the central sector of the Albanian front was repulsed with heavy losses to the Fascists, it was claimed.

The newest Italian air raids appeared relatively ineffective. An official communiqué said:

"Enemy aircraft yesterday bombed Salonika without causing casualties or damage."

"Bombs which fell on Volo exploded in a poor quarter, causing very little damage and few casualties to non-combatants."

"A few civilians were victimized by bombs at Preveza where houses were damaged and hospital was destroyed. Victims of previous raids were in the building."

"There also was a raid against an island in the Aegean sea, but this caused no casualties or damage."

REPORT GERMANY PLANS MOVE TO DEFEND TRIPOLI

most of the British gains thus far recorded can be dismissed as "episodic" despite the heavy losses of Italian men and material.

British seizure of Tripoli, on the other hand, would place the British in direct contact and liaison with the French.

(Editor's Note: In the opinion of diplomatic and military observers, such contact would be a matter of prime importance if there is any foundation for persistent reports that Weyand might choose to throw in his lot with the British rather than turning over French colonial forces to Germany and Italy.)

school of the University of Pennsylvania and law school of the University of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Matthews entered the practice of law in Lawrence county with the late Attorney A. Martin Graham. In recent years he has been the senior member of the law firm of Matthews, Jameson, Matheny & Graham.

His father, the late Charles Matthews, was a sheriff of Lawrence county many years ago. When Congressman John K. Tener resigned to become the governor of Pennsylvania, Mr. Matthews was elected to Congress and the judge-appointee served as his secretary. The last political post the late Charles Matthews, Sr., held was that of county commissioner, being appointed in 1924.

In 1937 the new judge appointee was a candidate for the nomination for judge here. He finished second to the late Judge Thomas W. Dickey but made a most creditable showing.

His appointment will probably be ratified by the State Senate on Monday night or Tuesday, and he will be inducted into office some time next week. He will preside over court room number two.

The appointment is good for the year 1941. In November of this year an election will be held to fill the post for 10 years.

RUMANIAN IRON GUARDIST RIOTS APPEAR HALTED

station, arresting defiant Iron Guardists who had seized the building after a series of violent assaults.

Last night, it was revealed, Rumanian Vice Premier Horvath Sima, leader of the Iron Guards, flew to Berlin to "receive instructions from the German government." The Germans were represented as "disappointed" by this new outbreak of Iron Guard anarchy.

Gaining Upper Hand
Antonescu appeared to be gaining the upper hand in restoring order after battles raged in Bucharest and provincial cities, resulting in heavy casualties.

Yesterday there was a long pitched fight in Bucharest between Rumanian troops and hundreds of "dissident" Iron Guardists.

Scores were injured and two Iron Guard rebels killed in the Bucharest battle, during which machine guns and at least two tanks were brought into action.

In the provinces communists were reported involved in the fighting, which grew out of the murder of Mayor Doehring, German general staff officer, on Monday. Doehring was slain by a naturalized Greek.

This morning reports to Budapest told of rapidly spreading anarchy in Rumania and "complete disorganization" of all economic activities.

Seizing Power
Everywhere, it was stated, the Rumanian army was seizing power, throwing out the Iron Guardists who were described as "no longer masters of the situation."

All policemen who were members of the Iron Guard were dismissed from the Bucharest police force, but they abandoned their jobs only after a bitter struggle with troops. Tanks finally were brought into action against them.

Likewise Iron Guard students employed by the Bucharest prefecture were dismissed from their jobs but refused to quit.

They barricaded themselves in the prefecture offices and defied troops sent to force them to surrender.

Thousands of other students, police and soldiers were dispatched to dislodge the beleaguered students, but some reports said the barricaded youths were still holding out against all comers.

Owing to the chaotic conditions in Rumania, details of the situation were confused and conflicting and none of the reports reaching here enjoyed official confirmation.

SUBSTITUTES FOR PRESIDENT'S PLAN MEET OPPOSITION

and opponents differed on the effect of testimony given the house committee yesterday by retiring ambassador to England Joseph P. Kennedy.

Opposes War Involvement
Kennedy, while declaring that all possible aid should be given Britain and that Mr. Roosevelt must have vast power, opposed legislation which might involve the nation in war and urged congress not abdicate in an emergency.

Kennedy opposed conveying of British supply ships by the American navy. Later, President Roosevelt declared that there is no intention of turning the navy into a convoy, or to transfer additional destroyers to the British. Suggestions that British or neutral ships be conveyed to some relay point half way across the Atlantic and the cargoes transferred to English boats, are in the Mother Hubbard class, he said.

The president was represented to be of the opinion that conveying may result in some shooting which would bring the U. S. close to war and the last thing the administration has in mind is to do anything that might start the shooting.

Many members said that Kennedy was not specific enough in his testimony to satisfy them.

Washington has given the Argentinas 110 million dollars. And something tells us they'll give us nothing but bookends.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph.D.

YOUR BOY IN MILITARY CAMP

Although an occasional parent would do almost anything to keep his son from being called in the selective draft, the majority of Americans believe with all their hearts that a year of military training will prove wholesome education for their boys. Most parents, moreover, consider it a patriotic duty and feel that it is the surest way to keep their sons alive if war should come to us.

Some youths are being rejected as physically unfit and have learned for the first time their physical defects. Many of these can and will be remedied. Parents of young children and youths will be more and more conscious of the need of proper dental and medical guidance, and of proper diet and health habits for the growing child.

We cannot easily estimate the full value derived from a year in military camp for the health of the average youth.

For some youths, however, it will mean a break in education and business and vocational experience. It will delay the progress of students in professional schools. Yes, there will be some hardships. On the other hand, some students in professional schools will gain in physical and mental health through this year of interruption.

Democratic Draft
The year of military training will prove a boon to many a youth who has had no job for months. Yet many a deserving youth would have been robbed of good character and citizenship values if, as some whose sons had jobs argued, only the unemployed should be called to the army. I have a notion, indeed, that the young man who will profit from a year in the military camp is the youth who has enjoyed too much luxury.

Many a youth, moreover, will learn in uniform, for the first time in his life, to respect authority, to do some things he doesn't want to do. And he will realize that he is no better than anybody else. Many for the first time will learn to go to bed at a reasonable hour, to get up at a reasonable hour in the morning, and to eat what is set before them. They will learn, in short, their first lessons in democracy.

Don't Subsidize Draft Boys
Some soldier youths unfortunately, long accustomed to luxuries at home, will be subsidized from the family purse. But not if their parents are wise. These parents will know that such luxuries would not necessarily help their sons physically nor morally, but rather would encourage them in these ways. Nor would it contribute to our American ideal of democracy. As a rule, I believe the patriotic duty of parents is not to send spending money to their sons in the army camp, but rather to induce these sons to send some money home as savings, no matter how rich or poor these parents are.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. My daughter, seven, refuses to eat any breakfast. If I force her to eat, it makes her sick.
A. For the next two weeks discipline yourself to show no concern whether she eats breakfast or not. If she has never eaten any breakfast in the meanwhile, calmly announce to her she can eat breakfast or not, but that if she does not eat breakfast she will be treated as sick and put to bed for the whole day—no toys, books, radio. But still let her choose.

The World and the Mud Puddles

CHRISTMAS CHEER.
The Christmas mail brought more than Christmas Cards. It brought letters—brave letters of cheer and hope for the future. I received one from a friend that is worth much. It runs as follows:
"A few years ago I called your attention to the man who fell out of the high building and who, as he went down, looked into the windows of each floor and said, 'I am all right so far!'
"At this time it is extremely difficult to tell whether we are at the top, or just what floor we are passing, but we can still say with all sincerity—
"MERRY CHRISTMAS!"
"And it is not too trifling—when we consider Europe and Asia, and contemplate all of the peoples caught by maladjustments in their economic life, or embroiled through human greed or ambition—to forget forebodings for TOMORROW and confidently wish for you and yours
"A Happy and Prosperous New Year!"

"Though the world seems to invite us to live from day to day, reaping what of pleasure, profit and enduring gains we can, and to think not of TOMORROW, let us still find place to hang the motto which hung by the desk of Abraham Lincoln—'And this, too will pass.'"

A REAL REASON

Breakit Jently was besieged by a very persistent auto salesman. "Please leave me alone," begged Breakit. "I don't want to get a new car now."

"I'll make a proposition," rejoined the salesman. "If you can give me just one good reason why you can't get the new car, I'll stay away until you call for me."

"All right," replied Breakit. "The reason is I'm still paying installments on the car I swapped for the car I traded in as part payment of the car I'm making monthly payments on now."

U. S. Patent Office

"I have just taken a sales job in a department store. The other girl at my counter called me down today when I told a customer the truth about one article and advised her to buy another which I knew was more becoming to her although a trifle cheaper. Do you think I did wrong?"—R.S.V.P.

Answer: Good sales psychology causes the customer's return. Therefore, it is my opinion that you applied it. If a fellow woman holds up in front of her a royal blue scarf priced at $2.00 and then a dusty rose or cream scarf at $1.50 and asks you which is the more becoming you would certainly be demonstrating not only poor salesmanship but poor taste if you recommended the former. Similarly, if you know from customers' returns that Venus stockings at $1.50 are not wearing as well as Diana stockings at $1.00, you certainly would apply poor sales psychology by advising customers to purchase the former. It certainly works well with me when a saleswoman tells me the truth about the product I am examining. And I know that my friends, in moments of confusion, appreciate the clerk who gives them honest advice as to what is most durable or most becoming and what is not, regardless of price. If she does recommend an item relatively low in price, she may temporarily lose the firm a dollar or two; but she is probably making a friend who knowing that she is reliable and honest will return again and again. Thus she acquires a permanent clientele instead of a temporary profit. However, as there are fifth columnists boring within nearly every organization, wisdom dictates that you give these recommendations beyond the earshot of your colleagues.

Question: At what age should a small boy be trained to remove his hat when indoors?—Mother.

Answer: As soon as he is graduated from the baby-cap stage. In other words, he should be taught this form of courtesy, as soon as he begins wearing a "stingy" or any other kind of hat that is easily removed. And he should be taught to remove his hat upon entering his own house, as well as entering others.

Question: When I call my husband at his office, should I announce myself as "Mrs. Smith" or say "his wife" when asked who is calling?—W. B.

Answer: Announce yourself as Mrs. Smith, and of course, ask for Mr. Smith, not Bill or John Smith.

Tomorrow—Tactless Remarks.

Of all things! We heard of a preacher who drinks buttermilk because he thinks it is better for him than coffee. "And then," explains his wife, "my husband puts in a couple of spoonfuls of sugar in his buttermilk."

It takes all kinds of people to make a world. The problem is to maintain a balance in favor of the right kind.

HUGGING SOCIAL

An ingenious scheme to raise money for a church by having a "hugging social" is reported by the Sylvan Valley, N. C. newspaper.

About 500 people were present and a nice amount was raised for the church. The schedule of prices was 15 cents for a two-minute hug, 50 cents for a 15 to 25-minute hug, $1 for another man's wife, 10 cents for old maids and no time limit. The young ladies of the church went to give another social to clear the church of debt, but older members protest.

Two men were chatting the other day and the following was said: "Did you ever have appendicitis?" "Thirty years ago I had something and there was an operation, but I have never been quite certain if it was for appendicitis or professional curiosity."

A proud parent called up a newspaper and reported the birth of twins. The girl reporter did not catch the message over the phone. "Will you repeat that?" she asked. "Not if I can help it," was the reply.

SHOULD KNOW

The new errand boy came back from a call and spoke about the chap to whom he had just delivered a package.

"He is blind, I think," said the boy. "Though he seemed to get around the room all right."

"What makes you think he is blind?"
He asked me twice where my hat was and I had it on my head all the time."

Five men were charged with drunken driving in Pittsburgh. Four were tried by juries and acquitted and one pleaded guilty and got 30 days in the jail house.

An Irish policeman told a complaining Indian out west if he didn't like this country he could go back where he came from.

Oh, let's be fair about it. A lot of men would slip their shoes off, too, if they weren't afraid to risk it.

Modern foolish talk:
"Go ahead—there's no train coming."
"I can't get around that truck."
"I never have any accidents."
"Wasn't that a stop sign?"
"It can't happen to me."
"We're going only 60 miles an hour. Oh, boy!"

MADE A DIFFERENCE

A man was about to get aboard a train at the union depot. The engine bell was ringing and the conductor was calling, "All aboard."

"Have I time to say goodbye to my wife, George?" asked the man of the porter.
"Ah, dunno, Boss," replied the porter. "How long has you been married?"

Ex-Vice President Garner has been offered a job in the movies. He would have made a great hit in the silent movies.

Two women talking: "When my sister was in Europe before the war, she saw a woman hitched to a mule." "That happened at my wedding."

The difference between a professional and an amateur is that the amateur does more strutting.

Thousand of mules are being used in the war in Europe. The jackasses started the war.

Landon Regaining Place In Party
Stewart Claims Willkie Is Losing
Support Of Roosevelt Responsible

By CHARLES P. STEWART
(Central Press Columnist)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—From Wendell L. Willkie's titular G. O. P. leadership Republican politicians in Washington are flopping rapidly back in the direction of Alf Landon's past titular leadership.

Of course, this isn't true of the formal party organization. That was put together on a Willkie basis and with a view to getting things in shape to run the Hoosier-New Yorker for president again in 1944. Regular headquarters workers show no indications of an inclination to turn cold toward him. Even if a few of them are beginning to feel somewhat that way they're not ready to say so yet. Republican senators and representatives on Capitol Hill are saying it very numerous, however. It's common talk in congressional lobbies and members' offices.

What did the business was Wendell's endorsement of the Democratic congressional management's bill ("with modifications," as he expressed it) conferring emergency power upon President Roosevelt.

And what's re-boostered Landon's stock was his declaration that both Willkie and F. D. R. believed all along that the United States must go to war if necessary to help Britain defeat Germany, that Willkie wouldn't have been nominated if he'd said so outright and that F. D. R. wouldn't have been elected if he'd said so unequivocally.

The assertion also is made in Republican circles that Willkie had won last November as an unqualified isolationist. But, query the critics, what was the use in running him at all on virtually the same paramount issue as Roosevelt?

A Democrat, Anyway!

He was a Democrat, anyway. They add—a nice candidate for the G. O. P. if nominated!

It's to be recalled that Wendell never was overly popular with old-line Republicans. They made the best of him, but pretty glumly. Now they're thoroughly sore at him. Some say it's just as well he was beaten. He'd have been no improvement on F. D. R., they remark.

It isn't solely Republican chat, either. Landon's position is getting him a good many isolation Democratic pats on the back.

Wendell's decision to visit England to size up the international situation greatly irritates isolationism likewise. The Republicans, though, think that that may turn out fairly satisfactorily from their standpoint. Wendell, in announcing his plan, explained that he intended to make the trip purely as a private citizen; for nothing but his personal enlightenment, G. O. P. commentators, however, are of the opinion that the report he makes will be so gratifying to the Roosevelt administration that it will wish him definitely back into the Democratic ranks and perhaps appoint him to an important executive post under F. D. R.'s regime, thus getting Republicanism entirely free of him permanently. Democratic isolationists can't see how this would promote isolation. For that matter, neither do the Republicans, but it would take him off the G. O. P.'s hands.

Spotlight Move?

Politicians surmise audibly that Wendell's voyage to England is a plan he hit on to keep him in the limelight.

They agree that it will do that, alright, but they doubt that it will improve his chances for a Republican nomination in 1944. Occasionally one of them's heard to suggest that it may get him Democratic nomination—then—if he makes himself useful enough to the present administration. That would be o. k. with the old-line Republicans, though, for they're confident they could best him. In fact, they'd like it, saying it would guarantee a 1944 G. O. P. victory.

That kind of conversation isn't serious, to be sure, but Republican expressions of G. O. P. politicians' anxiety to unload Willkie are.

Right at this juncture, if Republicans were holding a convention, signs are that it would name Alf Landon presidentially, on account of what he said concerning Wendell and F. D. R. Nineteen-forty-five is liable to be an altogether different thing.

Call For Practical Men

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.

AS, with his solemn and impressive inaugural address, Mr. Roosevelt begins a third term, it is impossible not to wish that his administrative ability more nearly matched his popularity and his eloquence. If he were as good an executive as he is a speaker, the situation in Washington today would be very different and there would not be that feeling of frustration which afflicts so many of the men who have come down here to help in the defense job.

IN his ability to make beautiful and striking phrases; in the pleading of a cause; in thrilling the people with voice and words, the President has no superior. Few men can match him along these lines; none excel. But when it comes to outlining his ideas and plans into practical operation only his most blindly devoted followers maintain that he measures up. The fact is that he is not a practical man. His talents lie along other lines. His many admirable qualities as a leader are not combined with organizing and operating capacity.

THIS is natural enough. It is rare, indeed, to find the crusading, flaming type of popular leader, with all those qualities of charm, looks, voice, vision, energy and enthusiasm, also equipped with the capacity for coordination and executive direction. Mr. Roosevelt, splendidly supplied with the former, notably lacks the latter—and every clearheaded friend of his capable of a detached judgment and with a real knowledge of the man knows it. However, this would not be a very damaging defect in the President if he had the faculty of delegating the operating job to competent men.

FROM the start of his first Administration the appalling thing about Mr. Roosevelt has been that he has surrounded himself not with practical men but with impractical men, not with operators but with theorists. This, when coupled with his reluctance to delegate power to anyone, has resulted in the amazing confusion and bewilderment which has characterized the New Deal from the beginning. It is the confusion flowing from executive incapacity that has brought about the waste and futility which in this regime has reached unprecedented heights. It is responsible for the fact that so many of the New Deal schemes did not work. They were not in hands that knew how to make them work.

AS the third term begins, and a crisis graver than any in generations calls for national competency as well as national leadership, we find the customary confusion is enhanced rather than diminished. The defense program is far behind schedule and the defense machinery is in a mess. No informed person disputes the facts and every posted pundit knows the reasons—to wit: First, the refusal of the President fully to delegate authority; second, his failure to pick one outstanding man and clothe him with complete power to do the job; third, the sniping and feuding among themselves of the Administration aides.

BALLADE OF LIFE

It's up and down to work by day,
It's home at eve to tend the fire;
Perhaps a game with cards to play,
To lock the doors and then retire.
It's earn the things which all require!

It's cut the grass or shovel snow,
But that's the life we're born to know.

If death has called across the way
Good neighbors will at once inquire
If help is needed there and they
Can sew for sorrow's black attire?

Next sound the chimes in yonder spire,
To marriage man and maiden go,
For both sing out the self-same choir!
But that's the life we're born to know.

From baby curls to tresses gray
We pass still following desire,
To all come moments of dismay
And painful times and sloughs of mire.

Good news and bad is brought by wire
To rich and poor and high and low
Of city, county, town or shire,
But that's the life we're born to know.

Lord, for the servant and thequire
The same experience below,
Same hopes, and fears and moments
But that's the life, we're born to know.

Industry Would Welcome Investigation On Charge Of Defense Program Holdup

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 22.—American industry would welcome an investigation into charges that it is responsible for holding up the national defense program, it was claimed today by George H. Bucher, president of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company.

"We would welcome such an investigation," he told reporters during a meeting of 200 Westinghouse executives, called to coordinate the company's defense efforts.

"We think industry has thrown itself into the whole fabricating situation and that, generally speaking, people don't realize the problems which arise."

Westinghouse, he declared, delivered approximately $18,000,000 worth of national defense materials in 1940 and will at least triple its defense production in 1941.

In the past few months, he said, the company has hired over 6,000 additional men, most of whom have been trained by the company itself for defense work.

A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of directors of the company, declared:

"Soon, even the most severe critics will see results that will satisfy them."

"Any other war was child's play to what we have to meet in this war. And the more difficult the offense and defense of modern war the more time it takes to get ready for it."

Bucher declared that far from being "overly fussy," the federal government "has been very helpful" in the national defense work.

The Great Game Of Politics

IN two other important aspects of the defense program the President's lack of executive ability to make his deeds match his words distresses those who, while deeply distrustful of his domestic policies, are anxious to support him on foreign policy.

One of these is his shockingly inadequate treatment of the nation's financial affairs. Before Congress convened, the President impressively spoke of the necessity of "drastic reductions" in all the "normal expenses of Government" which with increased taxation would enable the Federal financial structure to bear the heavy strain of the defense billions. But did he follow this up with appropriate action? He did not. When his so-called budget message went in, it was found that instead of proposing "drastic reductions" actually the normal expenses of the Government will be increased next year over this year. That, in view of the President's words, seems incredible, but it is a fact none-theless, attested by Senator Byrd, Mr. John T. Flynn and others who have analyzed the figures.

FINALLY, there is the lend-lease bill now pending in Congress. Had the President the practical ability to match his eloquence, he never would have presented the measure in its present offensive form. He easily could have put on the amendments which ultimately will be accepted. Instead, he has precipitated an unnecessarily violent and bitter debate which, though he will get the bill in the end, will have hurt the cause for which he stands. At no time has there been so great a need for practical men.

Moral Embargo Against Soviet Rumored By U. S.

Shipment Of Aircraft And Other War Supplies To Russia, To Be Allowed

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—With removal of the "moral embargo" on the shipment of aircraft and other war supplies to Russia, the United States government today sought to wean the Soviet Union away from the axis powers.

In one of the most important diplomatic moves made by this government since the outbreak of the European war, the state department today notified American manufacturers and exporters that the "moral embargo" imposed on the shipment of war supplies to Soviet Russia at the time of the invasion of Finland in 1939 has been revoked.

Henceforth, American manufacturers are "morally" free to sell to Russia anything they want, provided ing they can get a government export license for the proposed shipments. Thus, in the case of the Soviet, the export license becomes a formidable diplomatic weapon in the hands of this government.

The licenses will be granted in proportion to the good behavior and friendliness of Russia. If Moscow shuns full-fledged membership in the axis and helps to hold Germany in check in the Balkans, the government will be liberal in the granting of export licenses, it was said. However, should Moscow give too much support or encouragement to Germany and Japan or any other member of the axis, the American government will quickly decide that the purchases Russia may wish to make in this country would be in conflict with defense interests and therefore the export licenses could not be granted.

This gesture of friendship toward Russia represents the first concrete results of a series of conversations which Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles has held with Soviet Ambassador Constantine Oumansky in an effort to improve Russo-American relations and at the same time ensure the continued neutrality of Russia in the European conflict.

Greek fighting planes fought a violent aerial battle with the Italian bombers over Salonika, the advisers stated. Despite the falling bombs, Greek residents stood outside and watched the combat until the Fascist planes were driven off.

Other Italian planes raided Piraeus, the port of Athens.

GREAT BRITAIN PLANS TO CARRY WAR TO GERMANY

speaking," the prime minister said, "Tobruk and its garrison are in our hands."

Churchill for the first time gave some details of the new expeditionary force that Britain is establishing against the time when this country may take the initiative on continental Europe against Germany.

"Counting the home guard," he said, "we have four million armed and uniformed men who will play a part in the defense of our hearths and homes."

"But an army capable of being transported overseas in the form of military units will be measured by different standards. All sorts of factories have been established, sufficient to provide this army with all it will require in continuous action in Europe against the Germans."

"The bulk of these new planes is only just beginning to come into production. Many of them are still structurally incomplete. But a large number are three-quarters or four-fifths finished."

Churchill took occasion to remind Britain of its comparatively small losses in men since the war began.

"After 16 months of war between the greatest states armed with the deadliest weapons," he said, "not more than 60,000 British folk—nearly half of whom were civilians—have lost their lives by enemy action."

No Night Raids Made On Britain

(International News Service)

LONDON, Jan. 22.—For the second night in succession, no German planes appeared over Britain, and the air ministry announced today that it had "nothing to report."

One hundred bombers made flaming wreckage of London in three hours. And Hitler has 7,000 to send over for the knockout.

Proceed Satisfactorily

"Today the operations are proceeding satisfactorily. In the Kassala sector, pursuit continues of enemy forces which have now withdrawn over 40 miles east of the (Eritrean) frontier."

"East of Metemma, the enemy also is steadily giving ground in the face of our continued pressure."

"In Kenya, detachments which had been established on our side of the frontier since outbreak of hostilities everywhere are being driven back by intensive patrol activities."

Information received at general headquarters in Cairo said that the Italians were "dazed and non-plussed" by the rapidity and ingenuity of the attack.

The operation commenced with thrusts all around the outside of the perimeter, leaving the Italians in complete mystery as to where the main assault would come.

Wolves Meet On Tuesday Night

Bruno Sachs Is Guest Speaker;
Group Gathers In The Castleton

Wolves club members heard an educational talk delivered by Bruno Sachs during their dinner meeting in the Castleton, Tuesday evening.

Sachs, who was introduced by Paul Failla, chairman of the entertainment committee, spoke about Russia. Sachs, who spent several years in Russia as a metallurgist, depicted the economic situation and the various standards set up in that country. His talk proved most interesting.

Carmen Marinaro, formerly of Butler and now a New Castle resident, was a special guest. Marinaro was introduced and spoke briefly. Plans were completed for a stag party to be held on Wednesday, January 29, in the City Baking company, South Mill street. Plans were also launched for a ladies night program sometime in February.

All but four members attended. The meeting was easily one of the most successful held in some time. The next dinner meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, February 4, in the Castleton.

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Forty-nine of the fifty destroyers which this country traded to Great Britain have now crossed the Atlantic for combatant service in the war zone. Secretary of the Navy Knox said today.

Knox, at his press conference, branded as "absolutely untrue" reports that fifteen of the vessels had been held up at Halifax because of lack of trained British crews.

"All but one of the ships have gone across now," the Secretary said. "One was held up temporarily."

Tragic Dilemma Faces France As Conflicting Groups Have Developed

(EDITOR'S NOTE: France is torn by a "tragic dilemma" and is divided into two conflicting groups—one favoring collaboration with Germany and the other advocating resistance against German pressure and threats—Sir Philip Gibbs states today in a dispatch written especially for International News Service. The noted British commentator herewith presents a gripping picture of the struggle under way in France.)

By SIR PHILIP GIBBS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The meeting between French Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain and that strange man, Pierre Laval, whom the old soldier dismissed from the government not long ago, is a sign of the struggle going on in France today.

This struggle is between those who favor further collaboration with Germany as the only way to escape from the most ruthless penalties of defeat, and those who think France still will be able to preserve both her honor and independence by resisting German threats of complete humiliation.

So far the old Marshal has withstood all pressure to play the German game to the end by not yielding the French fleet or other German demands, in spite of German anger and insults which are becoming more violent.

It is a tragic dilemma which tears the French nation into conflicting groups. From evidence that reaches this country in a round-about way from occupied and unoccupied France, it is beyond doubt that great numbers of the French people are putting all their hope and faith in a British victory.

Feeling Growing

This feeling is growing in intensity, owing to the Italian losses in Egypt and Albania and the underable conditions of life under German occupation.

On the other hand there are groups on the extreme right and extreme left of French political thought which lean towards the idea of collaboration with Germany.

That seems very curious, if not mad, to the democratic mind.

The extreme right in France tends to be anti-British and is more in fear of internal revolution than of German domination.

Some generals and many aristocrats of the former rentier class who lived on their capital in luxury or middle-class prosperity are terrified, it seems, of a revolutionary movement which would overthrow their last hope of preserving something for themselves out of the ruins.

There are strange, desperate people in France, like the Cagoulauds, who are really Fascists and haters of democracy. They would like to establish a dictatorship with its heel well on the back of the proletariat.

Royalist Clique

There also is a fairly strong royalist clique working to overthrow the republic, but the extreme left is anti-Democratic and anti-Republican as the extreme right. They have a hatred of England because they think it is the strongest defender of the capitalist system in Europe, and that a British victory will prevent a sweep of communism, which they anticipate as a result of this war.

I had a queer example of this idea last winter when I was with the French army in France. Lord Gort, the commander-in-chief, attended a reception given him by the municipality of Lens, capital of the French northern mining region.

Patriotic speeches were made by high officials, but while these were actually going on I spoke to a number of French miners who were in the hall.

"What do you think of this war?" I asked.

One of them answered for his fellows:

"We think it is a war for capitalistism. French and British capitalists are defending their moneybags."

He refused to believe it was a war for liberty and civilization against the new code made in Germany which denies freedom of the mind and tramples all liberties.

I was startled by their conversation and think now that these ideas were one cause of the French collapse. Neither the extreme right nor the extreme left in France had any enthusiasm for the war. They were obsessed by their political ideas even while the enemy was driving at the heart of France.

Politicians don't want any outsider to become too big. They remember that Hoover's job in Belgium made him president.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1940 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The mellow old Grand Hotel escapes the pickax and the dynamite squad. Reports were a few months ago that it was to be wrecked, but now comes the news that it has been bought by a hotel chain and will suffer nothing worse than a face-lift. It is good news for those whose memories of a kinder day; certainly, a day when more people seemed to have more fun than they do now.

Lillian Russell and Freddy Gebhart used to dine frequently at the Grand at Broadway and Thirty-first street, as did the scintillant "Diamond Jim" Brady, William Faversham, Harry Lehr and countless others who have passed into our big-town folklore. If any of them came back they would be quite at home in the old Grand Hotel, still unchanged, with a setting and decor proclaiming the best possible of worlds—a circumstance which the Victorians had accepted and worked into their everyday life—chenille, lambrequins and all.

It was a world that stayed put. Hence our instinctive pleasure with any evidence of lengthening obsolescence, such as the salvation of the Grand Hotel.

I believe it was Democritus who warned the Athenians that they ought to develop a sense of historicity in which they had been signally lacking. He said in effect:

"You must learn to fight for your past as well as your present and your future." One feels that if the ghost who took old Scrooge for a ride would take us down the old back trail every so often we would get a better idea of what we may have to defend in America, and we would be better able to keep our mind, and our heart, on our work.

Much of the maturing civilization of America, in its days of coming of age, eddied around and through the inns of the countryside and the, then at least, imposing hotels of the big cities. While much of the goings on was not particularly edifying or civilizing—Diamond Jim Brady eating six dozen oysters, for instance—the fact was that a country which had never been carried below the knees found in these early-day hotels its first touch with unbandied amenities, cuisine, political education, dress, decorum and sense of national destiny. There was a salutary democratic flux in their corridors and barrooms.

A few blocks away from the Grand, at 637 Broadway is the old Broadway Central, its 1870 furnishings of needlepoint, ornolu, marble, mahogany and crystal a priceless museum of period decoration. Turning in the side door in Broadway, you may walk up one flight, rest your hand on the lintel and re-enact the shooting of Jim Fiske by old Edward Stokes, the culmination of their battle over the beautiful Jostie Mansfield.

You may stroll over to the equally nostalgic old Murray Hill, at Thirty-eighth and Lexington and put yourself again under the spell of "The Damnation of Theron Ware." Harold Frederick worked the old hotel into his memorable novel. You'll have to ring for the ghost of his ghostly hansom cab to explore the others, most of them long since gone.

Here are Tom Platt, I. Sloot-Bas-set and old Lemuel E. Quigg cooking up some bad news for rival politicians in the Amen Corner of the Fifth Avenue. Simeon Ford—and what a boniface he was!—is making everybody happy at the Grand Union. Red plush and crystal and new-fangled acetelyne lamps make a noble effulgence at the Astor at Broadway and Barclay. Here is the gaudy sporting and race-track crowd at the Hoffman House.

Those stately gentlemen with Prince Albert coats, walrus moustaches and planter's hats are turning into the somnolent old St. Denis, opposite Grace Church, the one proper and fitting domicile for Southerners in those days. The Union Club is at Twentieth and Fifth, and Delmonico's at Twenty-sixth. And be sure to have your ghostly Virgil point out the storied bartender, "William the Conqueror," at Stewart's, and all the other imposing bartenders, of tactful speech, curled cowlicks, immaculate linen, and elegant moustaches.

And don't forget the three-dimensional paintings in the barrooms.

Dr. Dafoe's Column
On The Quintuplets
And The Care
Of Your Children
(Copyright, 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

This is the third article of a series by the personal physician to the Dionne Quintuplets, on how to keep you and your children well in winter.

Third rule for winter health is: Don't overdress or overheat. When I was a boy it was a rule in most homes that everyone, particularly the male members of the family, had to wear long woolen underwear from Indian Summer until Queen Victoria's birthday, which fell on the twenty-fourth of May. I know now many of us were brought down with bad colds or pneumonia or influenza by this practice which, unfortunately, still is current in many localities.

The temperature of the human body stays at about 98 degrees Fahrenheit both summer and winter, if we are in normal health. The wise thing to do in winter is to try to keep clothing from interfering as little as possible with this normal temperature.

If, while wearing heavy clothing, we work or play indoors a lot, we are almost certain to perspire. Then if we go out into the cold, this perspiration evaporates quickly and the evaporation chills our skin and with it the blood in the blood vessels just below the skin. This definitely reduces our resistance to infection, by lowering the body's temperature.

If you work indoors, or if you are going in and out a lot during winter it is wise to wear light, almost summer-weight clothing and rely for protection from the cold on a heavy overcoat. Children particularly should be guarded against over-dressing.

There is such a thing as under-dressing in winter, too. It's no use to take issue with the dictates of fashion but I am sure that girls and women get bad colds, influenza, pneumonia, from the chills they suffer in winter because of inadequate clothing, and I offer this hint to women: woolen panties will never be seen, and they will keep you a whole lot warmer and a lot healthier.

I must address a word also to the mothers who dress children in winter in short stockings and skirts or trousers, leaving the knees bare. This is a practice that can produce nothing except harm.

It should be obvious that proper heating and proper ventilation are necessary for good health in winter. Yet I know many homes are overheated with abnormally dry air. Many with hot air heating systems have no provision for restoring to the atmosphere, the moisture that is taken out in the process of heating. This dryness of the air causes excessive evaporation from the skin and it is especially hard on the mucous membranes. It causes us to take cold more easily.

There are all sorts of heating and ventilating systems that are automatic in theory but need constant attention and regulation if the health of the users is to be protected properly.

Halt Visiting At Mercer County Home

(Special to The News)
MERCER, Jan. 22.—After a conference with physicians and nurses, Superintendent George W. Lawrence of the Mercer county home and hospital announced today that there will be no visiting hours at the hospital or home until after the flu epidemic has subsided.

This was a precautionary measure and the only exception will be in emergency cases and then only to near relatives.

Superintendent Lawrence stated this morning that there are only four cases of flu, and every precautionary measure is being used to prevent a spread of the epidemic in the hospital.

A. Z. A. Plans For West Pennsylvania Winter Tournament

Local Junior B'Nai B'rith Will Be Hosts To Large Delegation

New Castle chapter of A. Z. A., junior order of B'Nai B'rith, will be hosts to a large group of Jewish youth Saturday and Sunday, January 25 and 26 when the Winter Tournament for the Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia district will be held in this city.

The opening of the convention will be Friday evening in Tifereth Israel Synagogue, South Jefferson street, with Rabbi Gilbert A. Elefant in charge of the A. Z. A. Sabbath services. This will be followed by religious services again Saturday morning.

The convention proper will begin Saturday evening, January 25, when the delegates and members from out of town assemble at Tifereth Israel Synagogue for registration. House parties will be the program for Saturday evening when the young Jewish girls of the city will act as hostesses to the visiting members.

Sunday, January 26, the group will assemble at 8:30 a. m. in Temple Israel, Highland avenue where the members of the various chapters will compete for debate prowess. Some of these young Jewish chaps are orators and debaters of distinction and much interest is being shown in this part of the program. There will also be basketball games for championship held in the Arena during the morning and afternoon with a business meeting at Temple Israel at 3 p. m. at which time there will be an election of officers for the coming year.

The banquet will be a feature of the evening hour when the Tifereth Israel Sisterhood will prepare a delicious feast for the group. During this time there will be oratorical contests with medals awarded to the winners as well as the winners of basketball and debates.

The program will be topped in the evening by a dance at the Arena with a local orchestra furnishing the music.

Thursday evening the regular meeting of the local A. Z. A. chapter will be held in the Leslie Hotel at which time delegates will be named.

Sheldon Slavovskiy is the outgoing president of A. Z. A. with Howard Love as president-elect. Howard Love and Edward Levine are in charge of the Social and Housing committee; Mort Love is chairman of the debate and oratory committee; Irwin Rosen, basketball chairman; Norman Shapiro, banquet chairman; and Ted Marlin publicity and dance chairman.

Compulsory Army Service Not New

Pennsylvania Had Compulsory Training In 1775 History Shows

HARRISBURG, Jan. 22.—The patriotic response by young men in Pennsylvania who have voluntarily enlisted in the United States Army appears to be an old established custom in this Commonwealth according to records in the Archives Division of the State Library, which functions as a division of the Department of Public Instruction.

Old records show that compulsory military training in Pennsylvania dates back to 1775. On July 14 of that year Congress directed that the Colony of Pennsylvania raise four companies of riflemen to be formed into a battalion. These companies were promptly filled to overflowing and they immediately set off on their march to Boston. Many citizens went along with the soldiers as independent volunteers. Their names were not entered on the rolls and they claimed the privilege of paying their own expenses and returning at their pleasure.

But conditions have changed. The first volunteers had inadequate food and insufficient clothing and there were not even enough arms and ammunition to supply the enlisted men. There were no tanks or fast-moving trucks to move the troops; no comfortable barracks and hot food for the boys in 1775. Then, a private received only $6.66 per month, and he was required to find his own arms and clothing. Now, a private receives in addition to his salary of $30 per month, his board, clothing, and arms. Then, a captain received $20 per month. Now, he receives approximately $300 per month.

The first cases called before him were those of Anne Mehocic and Lewis Mehocic, minors by Mary Hehocic, guardian and in her own right versus John Matuz. The case arises out of an automobile accident on July 7, 1940 near the Ohio line when the two minor plaintiffs were injured.

In court room number one under Judge W. Walter Braham the case of A. I. Wachs versus H. R. Seibert and Louis Baron was finished in the afternoon. Mr. Wachs was injured in an accident and claimed damages from the defendants.

The will of Samuel H. Kneram, late of Scott township, divides the estate between five children, Carl S. George H. Joseph M. Roy G. Kneram and Edna D. McCracken.

The will of Adam S. Moore late of Neshannock township leaves certain pieces of property in Neshannock township to his wife, and to his daughter Ethel J. Moore, son Jesse Lee Moore and an adopted son Robert Lee Moore.

The will of Frances Bellone, late of Wayne township leaves three-fourths of his estate to a sister Maria Bazzichi, one fourth to a brother Valena Bellone. A home in Wayne township is divided between Nida Bazzichi, a niece, one half and the other half to a sister Mrs. Mari Bazzichi and nephews, Harry and Andrew Bazzichi and a niece Agostina Bazzichi.

The will of Margaret Santillo, late of New Castle, leaves the estate to a sister Julia Santillo Nero, $1000, a daughter Rosie Santillo Salerno, $1000, $200 to St. Vitus church and the rest of the estate to a son Charles Santillo.

The will of Julius F. Kurtz, Jr., late of New Castle, establishes a trust fund to be handled by the Citizens National Bank for the care of graves. A sister-in-law Mrs. R. C. Mastern gets an electric refrigerator and of the balance of the estate 75 per cent goes to her, 12½ per cent to a sister Annie Kurtz, a niece Nancy Barnett gets 6¼ per cent and a nephew Dean Cooper Mastern gets 6¼ per cent.

FEEDS SPARROWS

New Castle, Pa., Jan. 20, 1941.

I feed the English sparrows in the winter because I admire their pluck and sympathize with them in their struggle for existence. By personal experience I know what it is to be cold and hungry.

These birds are not much good. They are dirty, noisy and always fighting among themselves. However, they eat weed seeds and feed the larvae of certain weevils and cutworms to their nestlings.

Among bird students, English sparrows have a bad reputation, because they drive away the song birds, and try to make life miserable for the gentle and beautiful bluebirds.

Many Staggering Problems Are Confronting Congress

Stirring Battles Are In Prospect

Lease-Lend Bill And Budget Among Leading Measures In Controversy

NEW TAXATION WILL BE PROVIDED

By JACK VINCENT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—With President Roosevelt's third term inauguration out of the way, congress faces a long grind of hard work on a staggering pile of "must" legislation.

1. President Roosevelt's measure to lease or lend war materials to Britain.
2. Enactment of the $17,500,000,000 budget, and, over and above that, appropriations of billions to carry out the British aid program.
3. New taxation measures.
4. Lifting of the debt limit from $49,000,000,000 to $65,000,000,000 or scrapping it altogether.
5. Passage of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.
6. Bigger old age pensions and bringing more people under unemployment insurance.

The first five will cause what may turn out to be hectic fights. It is not known how long this, the 77th session, of congress will last. Nor will anyone hazard a guess. The last congress sat for 367 days, setting an all-time record. It had refused to adjourn during the world crisis, thus setting a precedent for the present congress to stay in session as long as there is war abroad.

Opened January 3
The present congress opened Jan. 3, but pending the president's inauguration, it had done little work except that the house foreign affairs committee started public hearings on President Roosevelt's British aid plan.

The senate so far has done little and leaders have not been pressing any legislation, since all appropriation and tax measures must originate in the house. However, the tempo is quickening. The senate foreign relations committee will start hearings on the aid to England program this week.

This step is being taken to speed up the bill. But even the most optimistic estimates say that a final vote on the measure may not be reached until around March 1. The bill is certain to cause a heated fight on the senate floor, one as bitter as the supreme court reorganization battle which the president lost.

Later, other fights are certain over appropriation bills, particularly those for non-defense activities. And it is believed certain also that this will be the biggest-spending congress in history. Appropriations of more than $20,000,000,000 already are in sight. Besides the budget, it was estimated that it would take at least $3,000,000,000 to get the British air program going and hearings now are underway for about $1,000,000,000 in deficiency appropriations for the navy.

Lieut. Atkinson Gets Promotion

Advanced From Second To First Lieutenant In Battery F.

Word has been received from the adjutant general's office, at Harrisburg, that Second Lieutenant Raymond F. Atkinson of local Battery F, 190th Field Artillery, has been elevated to the rank of first lieutenant, of the same unit, effective January 10.

Lieutenant Atkinson is 27 years of age. He served for three years with the C. M. T. C., and one year with the R. O. T. C. at Carnegie Tech University. He joined Troop F, 103rd Cavalry in 1933, as a private. Re-enlisted when the unit became Troop K, in 1936, and was commissioned second lieutenant in 1937. He was transferred with the same rank to Battery F, on its redesignation.

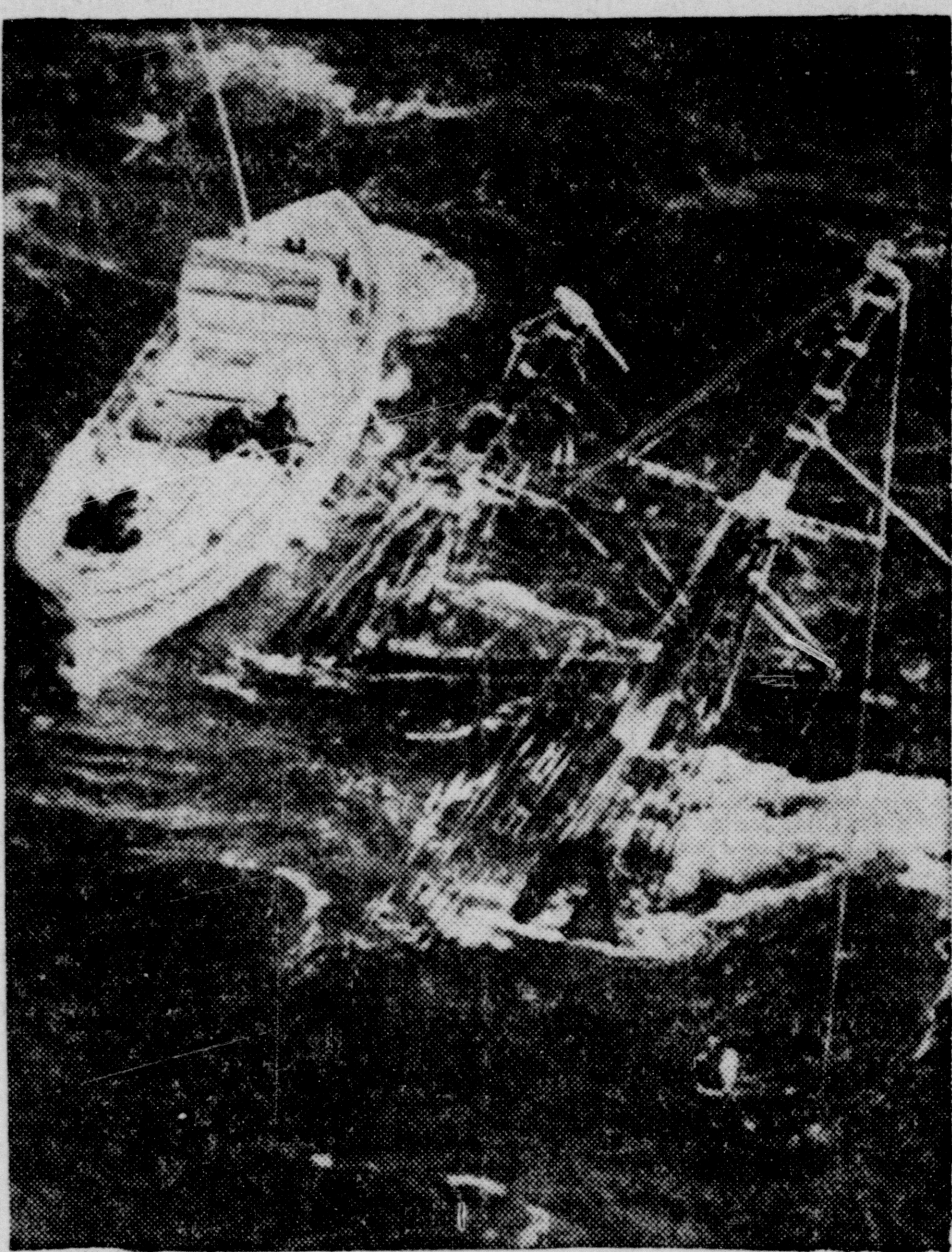

The lieutenant came up through the ranks, private to corporal, sergeant, to commissioned officer. He resides with his family at R. D. 3, Volant.
His promotion makes him second in command in Battery F.
Tuesday evening, in the drill hall, at Cunningham Armory, the men of Battery F were lined up by Captain George F. Mitchell, the commander, who ordered Lieutenant Atkinson brought forth, and placed before the group. With very appropriate remarks and ceremony, the Battery commander placed the bars on Lieutenant Atkinson's shoulder, proclaiming him first lieutenant of the unit. This was greeted with rousing cheers by the men of the Battery, showing their hearty appreciation. The lieutenant thanked all for their kind greetings.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 22.—The Pennsylvania Farm Show was nearing an attendance record today as officials prepared for the third day of judging the state's "blue-bloods" of livestock.

Increased interest and excitement was manifested in the proceedings as youthful exhibitors continued to dominate the winning circle and carry off the blue ribbons, symbolic of the championship.
Last night, before what state motor police described as the largest crowd ever to jam the arena, Pennsylvania's rural youth had their livestock on parade, as the second day of the 25th annual farm show ended.

Presbytery Meets In Local Church

Shenango Presbytery Hears Address By Dr. William Cleveland Of Harrisburg

Rev. William Cleveland, D. D., of Harrisburg, synodical executive of the Synod of Pennsylvania, was chief speaker Tuesday, when Shenango Presbytery met in the First Presbyterian church, corner of North Jefferson and Falls streets.

Rev. Homer K. Miller, pastor of the Volant and Rich Hill Presbyterian churches, is moderator of Shenango Presbytery.

In his address, Dr. Cleveland discussed arrangements for an every member canvass to be conducted this spring in all churches of the Presbytery, in addition to present world conditions. He was introduced by Rev. T. G. Berger, pastor of Slippery Rock Presbyterian church.

Several routine reports were heard during the day with an interesting report on foreign missions being given by Rev. W. J. Holmes, pastor of Calvary Presbyterian church. Frank Woodward, a sophomore at Westminster College, New Wilmington, son of a foreign missionary, was received under the care of Shenango Presbytery as a candidate for the ministry.

An encouraging note was brought to the meeting by Rev. A. S. McGarrah, D. D., promotional leader-at-large, who stated that the next three years will be prosperous ones when churches should endeavor to get out of debt so that when lean years come, they will be in good condition.

Next meeting of Shenango Presbytery will be held as a stated meeting on the second Tuesday of April.

Army Vernacular Is Prevalent At Armory

In United States today, the matter of National Defense is uppermost in government service.

Locally, the branches of service representing our defense forces, are found in the military activities of Battery F and Service Battery, 2nd Battalion, 190th Field Artillery.

Here is the kind of talk you might hear throughout the Cunningham Armory, where the local soldiers are now stationed. In the vernacular of the army service, a person shirking duty is called a "Gold Brick". When a soldier is absent without leave, he is A.W.O.L., but A.W.L. means that he is absent with leave. The job few seem to care for is K.P., which of course means "Kitchen Police," an M.P. stands for Military Police.

Even with commissioned officers there are synonyms for those of their rank, for instance a second lieutenant is a "shave tail". A captain is the "Skipper". "Brass Hats" are executive staff officers. A "Top Kick" identifies a First Sergeant, non-commissioned. A recruit is called a "Rookie". A "Dog Robber", is an orderly in officers' quarters. Round metal discs, with a number stamped thereon, and held by a piece of tape fastened around a soldier's neck, are used for the purpose of identification; in the army these discs are called "Dog Tags".

Not the most preferred place for the soldier to reside is the jail or guard-house, known to him as "the little red school-house". When the army goes out on field movements, and camps, that is known as a "Bivouac".

Oh yes! you must know that there is a feminine touch, ever ready to help soldiers under arms, which is known as "Housewives". Hm, housewives are sewing kits. And so the army speaks. It may sound strange; it is strange, but all so highly necessary.

TOBACCO FILM TO BE SHOWN TO TOWNSMEN
A film furnished by the American Tobacco Co. will be shown to members of The Townsman at their meeting in the Y. M. C. A. tonight at 7:30. A vote on new members is also scheduled.

President Chris A. Clark said the organization is at work on plans for an indoor benefit circus at the Cathedral during the week of February 17. The Townsman will also sponsor New Castle's annual marble tournament in the spring.

Littlefield Ballet Pleases Large Crowd

As a rather small boy a favorite aunt one time gave us a ticket of admission to a ballet performance and for the first time we witnessed a group of graceful young women pirouetting about on what appeared to be their toes. Critics described the scene as the "poetry of motion" but it was slow motion to us. And promptly we became allergic to ballet dancers.

It was with a little trepidation that we attended the Littlefield Ballet Tuesday night in the high school auditorium. That early picture of the "Dying Swan", dying before our very eyes kept recurring. All icing and no cake if you get the idea.

This One Is Different

But the Littlefield Ballet is different. Much different. Catherine Littlefield has given the ballet color, and action, and animation. For some of the staidness of the old time ballet she has substituted American restlessness. In other words she has dressed Vienna in the garb of Times Square.

Three groups were presented Tuesday night, the first, "Aurora's Wedding", the second "Cafe Society" and the third "The Barn Dance." As to Aurora's Wedding we'll say little. It was a little on the old time side but for the second and third we'd like to say it was ballet dancing of a new kind.

They were interpretive dancing that needed no road map to tell you what was being done. Ordinary folks could understand what they were doing and as those graceful youngsters skipped and danced through the various characters who are indigenous to Cafe Society, it was worth seeing.

The "Barn Dance" was in the same category. It was lively, it was graceful, it told a story, and told it well. Accompanying the ballets was a symphony orchestra that Altogether the Littlefield Ballet was worthwhile. We could point out the individual efforts of Catherine and Dorothy Littlefield, of Thomas Cannon of Mary Woods and Dorothy Swain but there is a dead line to meet.

NASH

Proves its AMAZING ECONOMY!

LOS ANGELES (Jan. 19th) — Today, when Gilmore-Grand Canyon Run results were officially published, it was revealed that the Nash Ambassador "600" had delivered more miles to the gallon than any other 6, 8, or 12-cylinder car in America's official economy race.

Scene of Nash victory . . . 599 miles of high speed travel . . . in desert heat, over mountain ranges.

NEVER before, in Gilmore competition, had a car so big gone so far, so fast, on such little gasoline!

But equally remarkable is the driver's own report of the race.

Even over rough mountain stretches, this Nash almost floated along — on its soft, four-wheel coil springs. And with its new Two-way Roller Steering it gripped the sharpest curves, as if it were geared to rails.

High above the snow line, drivers were kept warm by its Weather Eye Conditioned Air System.

You've got to see and drive this Nash yourself to know what it's like.

It's the result of three years' testing, and an investment of many millions of dollars.

Built with its body and frame welded together as one twist-proof, rattle-proof unit of amazing strength — it has the widest seats of any low-price car.

tries and France. Germany could and did bring the full force of her military might to bear. Against England she can bring only a portion. What reaches England must come by water or air. The invasion fleet, both water and air, must face the full force of England's navy, the air force and strong land defenses.

This, in the simplest terms, means that although Germany may have from four to eight million men under arms she can get only a small percentage to England, unless she is able to establish bridgeheads which she can keep and maintain.

I doubt if Germany will be able to land forces of sufficient strength in England to cope with the strength of the British defenses on its home territory.

Germany might ultimately be able to starve England out, but a victory by direct assault is filled with too many imponderables about which Bismarck used to muse.

Out Of Complacency
The collapse of France snapped England out of its complacency.

An army of 2,000,000 men has been equipped, trained in new tactics and awaits the invasion. A great deal of their equipment includes American artillery, rifles, tommy guns. We sent them 800,000 rifles, nearly 1,500 '75's as well as planes and destroyers. But this was only a stop-gap until Britain's own arsenal would recover from the Dunkirk losses. Today they have greatly recovered.

Behind the army stands the home guard, 1,000,000 civilians, the core of them former World War soldiers, who have in six months been knitted into a highly trained guerilla force. They are tough. They know they are fighting for their country, their wives, their children. And to an Englishman, England means more than life.

Their job is one of eternal watchfulness. They work all day. They stand guard over England all night in relays. Their work is voluntary. They are fighting for their homes and the right to live as they think is right.

Their job is to watch every inch of coastline, every square foot of England's interior for parachutists, or troop-carrying landings, surround and isolate such groups until army mop-up brigades can arrive.

Their weapons are the rifle, the tommy gun, the grenade and the dread Molotov cocktail, a beer bottle of highly inflammable liquid that can convert a tank into a flaming funeral pyre in a matter of seconds.

England today is a citadel honeycombed by defenses. The army is constantly on maneuver, all on wheels. Combat units are at hand in every area.

The army has been divided into various commands, such as the American army groups, defending every section of the country.

Both the army and the home guard have been trained in offensive tactics. The lesson has been learned again that the best defense is an offensive. They can't carry the fight to Hitler on the continent yet, but they are ready to carry it to any Germans who seek to land on their shores.

Army on Wheels
The army is on wheels — its infantry, artillery, pioneer and supply units. It doesn't expect to fight the invasion in trenches, but to move with lightning precision wherever the threat comes.

The armored divisions have been developed to a high point of efficiency in the same type of "knock-out" units as the German panzer divisions.

Three divisions are composed roughly (for obvious reasons I cannot go too much into detail) into motorcycle machine gun squads, tanks, both reconnaissance and heavy, mobile artillery, motorized infantry, communications, pioneer and supply units. They move as a closed fist, smashing a power-driven left hook.

If Germany taught the world the lesson of the concentration of force, the English have been apt students. They are ready for a mobile powerful defense.

The German panzer divisions had a picnic in Belgium and France. The French hardly troubled to blow up a bridge. In some places the fuses were even placed on the wrong side of the bridges. But the British demolitions I saw in Belgium and France were thorough and expert and their rearward action on their enforced withdrawal to the channel when the French and Belgians fell away on both their flanks will go down in history as one of the greatest.

The British army wasn't defeated in Flanders. It fought a steady withdrawal to the coast to save itself from annihilation. At the end one single British division held up the entire German army until the

Elden Auker Likes Cleveland Stadium

There's something about Cleveland Municipal stadium that appeals to Elden Auker, chucker for the St. Louis Browns of the American league.

Maybe it's the size of the arena or better perhaps, maybe it's the air coming from the lake side. Whatever it may be, Auker ranks as the best pitcher to perform in the big orchard in 1940.

Auker annexed no less than four straight victories in the Ohio lot. Bob Feller, as great as he is, copped eight and lost four.

Johnny Adams Leads Jockeys

Johnny Adams, who recently electrified turf addicts by bringing home five winners at Santa Anita track is leading the 1941 jockey race.

Adams has mounted 66 bangtails, crossing the finish line first 17 times up to yesterday. Jack Westrope ranks second with 14 winners. Basil James comes next with 11 winners while Johnny Longden has booted home 10 winning nags.

Adams has a record of 17 wins in 20 starts.

Unbeaten Titans To Have Ten Day Rest

(Special to The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Jan. 22.—With nine straight victories under their belts, without a loss for the season, and ranking as the only unbeaten college team in the state, Westminster's Towering Titans are taking a ten-day rest period for examinations, with rough-going ahead. The next Titan game is with the Indiana Indians on the Teachers' court February 4.

Although the Titans defeated the Indians once this season on the Westminster floor, 45-34, the game was close. The Titans made 16 baskets to 14 for Indiana, but converted on 14 out of 17 fouls while Indiana was making only 6 in 12.

If the Titans leap the Indiana hurdle, still stiffer going is coming up with Waynesburg, a home game for Westminster. Although the Titans have defeated the Wolfpack 21 times and lost 12, the Waynesburg cagers have won their last four games from the Blue and White, 42-30 and 46-45 last year, and 71-56 and 46-45 in 1938-39.

The Titans should take their games from West Chester, Millersville and Juniata on road-trips, and on the basis of previous performance should also take return games from already defeated Youngstown, Geneva, Bethany, Slippery Rock and Tech.

Of the remaining 12 Titan games, however, eight will be played on foreign courts, with only four contests scheduled on the home floor.

Polish Falcons Defeat Buhlers

The Polish Falcons made it nine straight wins last night at the Falcon floor, by defeating the Sharon Buhl club Jayvees 52 to 40 in a rough and tumble battle. At the half the Falcons led 28 to 25.

Eddie "Cash" Koszela and George Adams were the Falcon scoring stars with 37 of the points between them. Best for Sharon was Farringer and Basher.

Thursday night the Falcons will play the Sharon-Farrell S. E. U. team at the Falcon hall, with the undefeated St. Michaels meeting a fast local team in the preliminary.

Pirate Rookie Hurlers Sign

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 22.—Two more recruit pitchers were listed under the Pirate banner for 1941 today as President William E. Benswanger of the Pittsburgh ball club announced signing of Lloyd (Dutch) Dietz and Bill Clemens, both right-handers.

Dietz worked under Pittsburgh official at Syracuse in the International league last year, returning to the Pirates just before the close of the season. Clemens comes to the Pirates from Syracuse also for his fifth appearance in a Pirate training camp.

ITALIAN TRACK VET STILL GOING STRONG

Now in his middle thirties, Luigi Beccali, the veteran Italian distance runner, is surprising all and sundry by providing unexpected competition for track leaders.

In 1932, Beccali captured the 1,500 meter Olympic championship for Italy.

Tom Stidham, Oklahoma football coach, is one-sixteenth Indian. The rest is Irish. However, Tom went to school at Haskell.

SPORTS WORLD RAMBLINGS

Dashes of this and that—As chairman of the committee in charge of the recent benefit amateur boxing show for the Johnson triplets, your scribbler thanks the sports colony for being so patronizing. With the thermometer toying with the warm and coziness of their homes to extend a helping hand. Such a human gesture comes under the category of inflexible deeds.

Good losers are as rare as gems. This sports axiom reminded us of the unusual scene enacted on Washington floor (Washington, Pa.) after Washington's victory over Westminster & Jefferson. The Titans were swarmed by W. & J. rooters. The Prexy followers spared no adjectives in praising the Titans mainly for pronounced sportsmanship. The consensus of opinion was that the game was one of the cleanest ever played in Washington. A tribute to two of the finest institutions in the district.

It may interest county nimrodians to know that four resolutions, engineered in Lawrence County, were approved during a session of the Northwest division of the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's clubs. The most important one would make a jail sentence mandatory for a hunter accidentally killing another, unless the victim's family requests leniency. The Lawrence County Sportsmen's Association originated the resolution.

Western Pennsylvania fair men hold their annual shindig in Pittsburgh on Tuesday afternoon. February 18 Representatives of some 20 fairs will be on hand.

For successfully piloting Boston College's football team, Coach Frank Leahy reportedly has been rewarded with a new five year contract, calling for $12,000 a year.

If the rumor is true, where does Ted Williams get the idea he's worth as much as Jimmy Fox? Williams has a long and rocky road ahead before he achieves Fox's greatness. Major league contracts this season carry provisions covering the drafting of players. A drafted major leaguer is taken off the active list and placed on a special military service list at no pay. The documents provide that a club is allowed ample time to make room for the draftee before restoring him to the active list at the completion of Army service.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Jeffrey Dime, light-heavyweight offstage of George Chip, sustained a bone fracture in his left hand the first time he jabbed Charley Riggs, Monday night in The Arena. However, he finished the three rounds, defeated but not outgamed. Had Jeffrey buried some hooks in the colored boy's body and lifted him up, he might have got a chance to whale over a right to the chin. However, he didn't and the colored boy, wise to the ways of the ring, threw over-hand punches that put Jeffrey down several times. Upon each down Jeffrey got up without taking benefit of ring law—time to collect his faculties. Although Dime was much taller than Riggs, each weighed the same.

Norman Ross, former marine, was the representative of Boxing Commissioner Harvey Boyle. Norman formerly was a wrestler and at one time was champion of the navy at 147 pounds. He showed us a watch given him for winning at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Incidentally he asked if we knew Cora Livingston. Cora will be recalled, as possibly the first girl wrestler. We saw her in the days when our hair was off sufficiently red to fry an egg. Well, Norman told us he wrestled her while 10,000 sailors watched the match. He said she was an excellent wrestler.

There's one person who has an important task yet is rarely seen by fans at The Arena. He is Yankee Pagley, former amateur fighter who will be recalled for his hectic scraps with Lou Tambores back in the early '30s. It is Yankee's job to keep the fighters entering the ring, minus delays. No one interferes with Pagley. He is the boss of the dressing-rooms and he knows his business.

Apparently The Arena has an excellent pair of judges in Tommy Jones, ex-lightweight and Phil Greer, formerly a Jolly bowl attacker. Their slips were identical Monday night. Tommy was a fighter and Phil who now is creeping to 50, knows all of the fighters back to the days when Tony Capone et al. were headquartering here. In fact, he knows more about some fighters than some persons who earn a living typing their accomplishments. He demonstrated Monday night he knows ring law. When one of the seconds stood up and coached during a round Greer called his attention to the breach of boxing rules and Referee Lyshock ordered the second to desist.

An announcer of former days was here Monday night. Jack Douglas. He is now a steward at the Eagles club. Fayrell Douglas, once a song and dance man, later a businessman, announced many athletic events here years ago. His fog-horn voice could shout down a din of noise and with an actor's clarity knew how to put over what he wanted fans to understand. We yet recall when he strutted in front of the Shenango Pottery baseball team announcing the ball game at Centennial field. His voice carried above the roar of Washington street traffic, drawing people to second and third story windows.

Now united in a common cause—Johnny Dean and Freddy Lenn. Both are pro middleweights and have fought each other but now they're on recruiting duty in Pittsburgh. Johnny will return here. He got a grand hand in his resplendent uniform when he took a bow in The Arena. Incidentally Norman Ross and Johnny struck up a paw wow and both learned each had mutual friends in various parts of the world, boys they had served with when Uncle Sam's soldiers of the sea were seeing the world.

Fans will recall Johnny George, former Y wrestler who made the varsity at University of Illinois. According to Henry MacNichols of the Y, Johnny is now a captain in the Regular army, and is stationed at Savannah, Ga. He is teaching physical education. Johnny at 135 won two state Y championships. His brother, Nick, is working at Irvin. While he keeps in trim he has not been active as a grappler. These boys' cousin, Louie, who was a member of the Y squad is now on the Illinois squad. He is wrestling at 155 pounds.

Fourteenth annual northeastern Ohio class A independent basketball tournament is scheduled for March 4-8, inclusive. Teams interested may write F. G. Lillis, box 12, Sebring, O., Art Thornblad, Kenosha, Wis., former champion, Tuesday in the world's three-cushion billiards title, lost to Art Rubin, New York, 50-39, in 58 innings. Jake Schaefer, Cleveland, won his third game in four starts, by beating John Fitzpatrick, Chicago, 50-38, in 38 innings, and Lenn Kenney, Chicago, won from Herb Peterson, St. Louis, 50-28, in 51 innings and left the cellar position.

Bob Feller will receive $30,000 for pitching for the Indians in 1941. Barney Ellwell, junior sprinter and broad jumper at Penn State, has been entered in eight indoor meets, according to Coach Chick Werner.

Frank Kovacs, Oakland, Calif., vanquished Don McNeil, Oklahoma City, national singles tennis champion, 6-2, 6-4, 6-0, at Oakland on Tuesday.

Billy Evans, former major league umpire and baseball executive, is dickering with the Brooklyn Dodgers for the purchase of the Elmira franchise.

Red Burman hopes to wage an aggressive fight when he fights Joe Louis in New York, January 31. He will try to follow the advice of Jack Dempsey.

BRITISH RETURN TO PARLOR GAMES

(International News Service)
LONDON, Jan. 20.—Many old favorite parlor games are making a welcome re-appearance to help pass the long night hours in air raid shelters, a survey revealed recently. Chess, checkers, dominoes are more popular than ever, while Mah Jong, which enjoyed its last craze about sixteen years ago, is rapidly returning to favor. Twelve hours, and sometimes more, is a long time to spend in a shelter when sleep is impossible, and many old card games have been renewed. Backgammon heads the list of games for two people, and stores would like to have a large supply of Chinese checkers, a game for six people.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The stock market staged a small rally today following two days of decline. Trading volume was light.

Persistent buying in rails again was a feature of the market. This group has been independently strong so far this week despite the sluggish performance in other parts of the market.

Aitchison and Chesapeake & Ohio gained a half point each. An early loss of 1/2 in Bethlehem Steel was converted to a 1/4 gain before the end of the first hour. U. S. Steel, General Motors, and Chrysler opened easier but were soon behind fractional plus signs.

Dow Chemical advanced more than a point and Du Pont nearly a point. Except for Douglas Aircraft, aviation gains. American Airlines spurred a point. Utilities were mixed. Texas Corp. stepped up 1/2. Coppers and mail orders improved.

(BULLETIN)

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Charles L. McNary of Oregon, Senate Republican leader and the 1940 G. O. McNary's statement was the first formal pronouncement by the Republican leadership in Congress on the stand the minority will take on the legislation.

INGENIOUS BOY INVENTS LAZY MAN'S WINDOW CLOSER

Open

Presto... Shut!

William Coulter, a New Wilmington, Pa., youth, being of average inclinations and disinclinations, is disinclined to getting out of a warm bed to shut his bedroom window when it rains. So William collected his inventive talents, an electric motor, a pin, a piece of string, two old springs, a couple of odd wires and a bit of paper. Here's how it works. The first few drops of rain, left, break the paper, which is held taut by springs. A contact is made that starts the motor. Then, the motor pulls the pin from the window, permitting it to close, right. Simple, eh?

All New Castle Car And Bus Operators Make Safety Record

Again this year as he did last, Superintendent T. C. Moore, of New Castle Electric Street Railway Company, will take a solid delegation of the car and bus operators on the local transportation lines to Youngstown, Thursday, to participate in the annual safety dinners given in honor of the operators of New Castle, Sharon and Youngstown who went throughout either the first half or the second half of 1940 without an accident charged against them.

Every one of the 28 New Castle operators made such an accident-free record. Furthermore 25 of them or 89 percent, went throughout the entire year without a chargeable accident.

So it will be with commendable pride that the New Castle men will go to Youngstown to join there with the operators of Youngstown and Sharon who have made similarly accident-free records. The dinners, one at noon for the men working the late runs and the other in the evening for the early men, are in honor of the men who made such six-month accident-free records. Out of a possible 279 men in the three cities 262, or approximately 94 percent, made such records and will join in the festivities.

Meeting with them will be their wives and officials of the transportation companies to help them celebrate their achievement. The only speaker will be R. N. Graham, executive vice president, who will extend to the men the appreciation of the management for their fine safety work. The rest of the program following the dinners will be entertainment by well known performers of the radio and the stage.

The combined records of the three cities for 1940 showed a fine improvement over 1939, which in turn was better than that of 1938. In the year just past the number of chargeable accidents was reduced from 128 in 1939 to 107, a decrease of 16.4 percent.

The twenty-eight men of New Castle Electric Street Railway company who will be honor guests at the dinners are:

M. E. Bare, D. H. Barge, P. N. Brest, C. C. Clark, C. E. Douglas, K. Frazier, C. J. Garwig, J. E. Gorman, A. H. Heasley, M. J. Hunter, A. C. Kelliher, W. A. Kyle, J. G. Mariacher, C. E. Meade, J. E. Miller, J. H. McCombs, A. G. McClure, H. A. McConnell, D. M. McFate, Clark Pattison, W. L. Reed, C. J. Roeder, L. O. Rowland, H. L. Shoaff, T. W. Spiers, R. G. Stewart, C. C. Wick, A. W. Wolfe.

analysis will be purchased from the share New Castle gets to keep.

County Chairman Presley N. Jones, heading a group of committees, said yesterday a huge birthday cake, in the form of the nation's capitol building at Washington, has been ordered for the ball. It will help to win more money for the paralysis fund that evening.

Jones said the city is responding "generously" to the "March of Dimes" cause, too. Receptacles have been placed in downtown stores and offices and coins are pouring in. A stream of dimes is also going through the mails to President Roosevelt at the White House.

Tickets may be bought at the New Castle Drug Co., Joseph's Market, Paisley's, Len's Clothing, Butz Bros., Love and Megown's and Shaffer & Snyder's.

Burglary Costs Officer His Job

WARREN, O., Jan. 22.—Patrolman Robert Stassin, on whose downtown beat burglars early Monday made away with an 800-pound safe from the Western Union Telegraph Co. office, on Tuesday was dismissed by Safety Director Raymond L. Schriever.

Charges of neglect of duty had been preferred by Police Chief B. J. Gillen. Similar charges were filed against Stassin several months ago.

The safe was loaded into a truck parked on a main thoroughfare shortly before dawn, driven to Packard Park, two miles away, and smashed open. It yielded $100 in cash.

On European Mission Ceremonial At Y.W.C.A. Held For Jewelry Project

Nine Girl Reserves Become Jewelry Wearers Tuesday Evening At Program

In an interesting and effective ceremonial, conducted Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock in the auditorium of the Y. W. C. A., nine Girl Reserves became wearers of the Girl Reserve symbol.

With the parade, which included a medley of Girl Reserve songs, Edith Bodendorfer and Peggy Wilkison lit the candles in tall white candelabra which stood on either side of the Girl Reserve emblem. In the processional were Interclub Council members, wearing white blouses, dark skirts and G. R. arm-bands, and the girls about to become wearers of the symbol, wearing the traditional capes of Girl Reserve blue. All carried candles and indicated a desire to become intelligent wearers by lighting the candles at a burning taper held by Miss Elizabeth Yingling, president of the Ne-Ca-Hi club three years ago and now a Ne-Ca-Hi club adviser.

Near the close of the ceremonial, Miss Yingling, after making appropriate remarks about the ideals embodied in the symbol, presented the jewelry and then asked the girls what the symbol meant to them. After their response, the entire group united in singing "Follow the Gleam," the recessional starting at the second verse.

Barbara Edelstein, treasurer of the Washington club, was accompanist for the ceremonial, with the exception of the code song, accompanied by Mrs. Webber. Mary McMullen, a Girl Reserve of the Mahoningtown club, had charge of the arm-bands worn by the Council. Edith Bodendorfer, secretary of Interclub Council, presided during the evening.

News Briefs From City Hall

Mayor Charles B. Mayne was in a fine mood today when he presided in police court. Sam Wilson and Mary Thomas, alias Brown, both colored, who had been arrested in a Bridge street home last night on a charge of suspicion, were fined $25, with the alternate of spending 30 days in the county jail. The mayor also fined Andrew Perkin $25 with a jail alternate. He was arrested on suspicion of peering through windows in McCleary avenue last night. Fred Palone was given a similar fine upon conviction of drunkenness, disorderly conduct and resisting an officer last night in an East Washington street confectionery.

Officer Price suffered an odd accident last night while on duty in a police cruiser car. He attempted to open the glove compartment of the car. A piece of spring flew off and struck a pivot tooth, breaking it, the officer reported to Chief of Police Willis G. McMullen today.

There were no house burglaries last night according to police. However, Chief of Police Willis G. McMullen today stated that the burglar who has been operating here has invariably used a skeleton key to unlock the common type of door. McMullen said the police have 10,000 homes to watch, and possibly, he declared, most of them can be entered with a skeleton key. "If a good night lock were installed it would help check burglaries," he opined.

Robert Burke and Richard Weeks, both of Pittsburgh, who have been employed here, were turned over to the custody of Alderman W. J. Ewing yesterday. They were accused by John Fenchak, 1320 South Jefferson street, of having stolen a watch from him. The watch was said to have been found in a police car which was used to convey the pair to the city jail. It was said to be worth $60. Both men deny stealing the watch. Fenchak was instructed by police to charge the men with larceny.

Shenango Officers Order War On Dogs

Roaming Dogs Will Be Shot On Sight Is Warning Of Officer

Roaming dogs in Shenango township, particularly in the Butler road extension section, today brought from township law enforcement authorities a warning that during the next week or so "licensed or unlicensed dogs, straying about, will be shot on sight."

"Far too many complaints" have reached Constable Walter R. Wadlington and, in some cases, mothers have hesitated to allow youngsters to attend school.

Before we get trouble we're going to clean the situation up," the constable said. "We want dog owners to co-operate, for this isn't action we want to take—we must."
